Microsoft Releases Windows Update KB4487345 To Fix KB4480970 Issue

7 SP1 & Windows Server 2008 R2 SP1?

FYI: Local users who are part of the local "Administrators" group may not be able to remotely access shares on Windows Server 2008 R2 and Windows 7 machines after installing the January 8th, 2019 security updates. This does not affect domain accounts in the local "Administrators" group.

Below are some tips that may help address this issue from KB4480970 :

1. use either a local account that is not part of the local "Administrators" group or any domain user (including domain administrators).
2. Manually remove that KB4480970 from your own Windows 7 or Windows 2008 server. save your work then reboot your computer (client).

And then, you temporarily prevent KB4480970 from reinstalling automatically: <http://bit.ly/2FjVQQL> "How to temporarily prevent a Windows Update from reinstalling in Windows 10?".

3. For power users only, try adding
